Bridge-type communication cabinets from the five Central Asian countries

Overview

The C5+1 diplomatic platform represents the U. government's whole of government approach to Central Asia, jointly engaging all five Central Asian governments (Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan). Abstract—Taking the Chinese media communicated in Central Asia as the research object, this paper explores the development pattern and communication situation of Chinese media in Central Asia by combing the development of Chinese media in Central Asian countries under the Belt and Road Initiative. The establishment of the China-Central Asia. China's thinking toward Central Asia is encapsulated by its Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), a grand strategy that has evolved over the past decade although Beijing has warned Chinese writers and officials never to call it a strategy. Today, it is an important region for the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), with several land corridors passing. The decision of principle to launch a new dialogue format between the U. and Central Asian countries was made during the UN General Assembly in New York on Septem. Secretary of State John Kerry met with Ministers of Foreign.
