Industry and market trends libya

Overview

Recent macroeconomic, financial, and social developments The Libyan economy is estimated to have contracted by 3.1% in 2023, primarily due to a decline in oil production. Rich in natural resources, particularly oil and gas, Libya has the potential to be a key player in the global energy market. However, political instability and infrastructural. Exploring new markets can seem daunting, but Libya offers unique opportunities for those willing to take the plunge. As the World Bank notes, diversifying the economy and reducing dependence on hydrocarbons is a key medium-term challenge. In 2024, non-oil GDP actually grew by around 7%. This, in turn, directly influenced the volume of trade, which saw an average increase of about 35%.
