Is it illegal to install photovoltaic panels for free in the village

Overview

Department of Energy, most homeowners can install solar panels, even if they live in an HOA community. HOAs can only impose “reasonable restrictions” on solar panel installation. Most states have solar access laws that forbid any agreement, covenant, condition, bylaw, or contract that outlaws or limits solar installations by Homeowners Associations (HOA) or other municipal bodies. However, some states. While a federal tax credit and a mishmash of other incentives make solar panels an attractive option, depending where you live (at the state, local and even neighborhood level) you might have a few more hurdles to jump. Federal laws also play a role, particularly through policies that encourage renewable energy. These laws are designed to. With laws dating back decades, Arizona solar access laws were fortified in 2007's Senate Bill 1254 which states “an association shall not prohibit the installation or use of a solar energy device” but may “adopt reasonable rules regarding the placement of a solar energy device if those rules do not.
